Special Events Permitting Notice from Public Works Department, Storm Water Division

ILLICIT DISCHARGE PROHIBITED

Establishments and street vendors that prepare and serve food are currently very much under the microscope of the Environmental Protection Agency. Much of this has to do with the methods of handling and disposal of the by-product of the food service industry, such as waste cooking oil and grease. Any disposal method in which waste cooking oil and grease can be spilled or leaked onto the ground can result in damage to the water table, and ultimately to the nation's water supply and marine plant and animal life. All our food establishments within the city are required to follow strict rules for disposal. The same rules apply to street vendors during festivals.

All food vendors are required to have an absorbent pad, or cardboard, under their work area to avoid grease and other ingredient spills. It is also suggested that you have a canvas type tarp (such as a painter's tarp) underneath the absorbent pad. This will apply to any outside food or drink preparation.

If a spill should occur, vendors are required to immediately report it to the event organizer. Organizers are required to have onsite a spill response kit containing floor dry (aka kitty litter) and absorbent pads. Proper cleaning also includes scrubbing of the surface and vacuuming up all liquid which can't be washed into the storm drain system. Additionally, the vendor and/or organizer will be required to hire a professional steam cleaner.

In accordance with federally mandated standards, the City of Oak Harbor has adopted an "Illicit Discharge" ordinance (OHMC Title 12) (12.50.02) which prohibits the discharge, pouring, or otherwise allowing anything other but rainwater to be deposited on the ground or down the storm drain. The ordinance also makes the responsible person or establishment financially liable for the cost of clean-up and/or decontamination following the illicit discharge. The complete language of this ordinance may be found in the City of Oak Harbor Municipal Code at www.oakharbor.gov.
